Cold Winter Predictions Analyzed By Experts Who Make Study of Weather

Will the coming winter be colder or will it be warmer than the average of winters?

A study of winter temperatures beginning with that of 1829, and covering New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, does not afford an answer to the question. It presents an interesting fact, however—namely, that the average of the fifty twenty years of the period is nearly three degrees lower than that of the last twenty years, 32.6 degrees in comparison with 35.5 degrees. One cannot base a conclusion from a 121 instance, but it is in line with broader and more extensive observations. It offers no clue to what we may expect in the winter now ahead. Forecasts in the case are uncertain of verification, writes Jacques W. Redway in New York Sun.

Popular traditions offer a warm summer with a cold winter to follow. Sometimes it happens that way, it is true, but if the mean temperature of the year is below the average both summer and winter usually are cold—and that, too, has exceptions.

Where there are no movements and neither cold nor dust to interrupt the sun's rays the temperature of the air would vary with the number of daylight hours and the altitude of the sun above the horizon. Our winters would be cold for two causes—namely, the lack of summer and the low altitude of the sun, whose rays lose much of their effect as they fall slant upon the earth.

But other factors are to be considered. The air is ever in motion and cold waves from arctic regions sweep southward into temperate zones. When more than the average number of cold waves are received, a cold winter from that cause is rarely much below the average.

A cold year is another matter. It is a steady and progressive falling of temperature over a great part of the earth. In 100 years of record in New York City, including sixty years of weather observations, there have been six years in which the winter temperatures have been bitingly cold. The coldest of record, 27.9 degrees, occurred in 1835-36, when the mean temperature was nearly five degrees below the normal winter temperature. The second record cold winter in Philadelphia, the mean being the same as that of New York City.

The winter of 1885- and also the year—was also very cold, and a reason therefore was discovered. In 1884, Krakatau, a volcano in Sunda Strait, belched several hundred million tons of dust into the upper air. The resulting haze was so dense that the sun shone red in midday hours and blood red when at the horizon. The dust blanket was so dense that it intercepted a measurable degree of heat, causing a cool spell that lasted for more than a year. There was no question about the character of the dust. Examined by scores of expert microscopists, it was found to consist of lava blasted into fine dust by the volcanic explosion; shot twenty miles into the upper air, it spread into a broad belt that girdled the earth. Dust below cloud height is quickly brought to earth by rain or by snow; above cloud height it falls by its own gravity and falls so slowly that the rate is hardly measurable.

The study of the dust blanket of Krakatau has made plain the cause of other severely cold winters, both winter and summer. The "dry fog" in 1783, described by Benjamin Franklin, and that of the summer of 1816, which required a chapter of explanation in Thompson's "History of Vermont," was a volcanic dust blanket.

Will our coming winter be cold? In accordance with popular tradition it should follow a summer that has been rather warm. The winter now ahead— and it may not be. The five winters preceding that of 1933-34 were all warm, one being a fraction above degree above normal temperature. Last winter was cold—nearly five degrees below the average of twenty years. To anticipate a cold winter would not be unreasonable, but a positive forecast would not be reasonable. There has not been a volcanic eruption of the kind that shoots dust clouds into the air, and there is nothing to show that the earth has been radiating more heat in the past.

When March 22, 1936, comes to us the weather sharps who base their forecasts on "goose-foot" collective will shoot "I told you so."

Seigneurs To Lose Rights

Quebec Municipalities May Be Permitted To Purchase Clear Title To Seigneurial Rights—Last vestige of the ancient feudal system on this continent—has fast disappearing from Quebec with the appointment by the Quebec government of a rights purchasing commission under the Seigneurial Rights Abolition Act.

Introduced during the 17th century when eastern Canada was New France, seigneurial rights were granted to certain settlers as a colonization measure, entitling them to collect dues from farmers who took up land on their estates. In return, the seigneur agreed to use all his efforts to encourage settlement and clearing of the land. The farmers gathered at the seigneur's house a certain day each year to pay their dues, known as cens et rentes.

Under the French regime 225 seigneuries were established, of which 100 still exist. Three hundred years ago the seigneur would accept a few cents in cash for the rent of his wheat, fruit and vegetables, as well as the dues in farm products such as wheat, fowl and vegetables. To intercept the seigneur, however, difficult the estate was, the more the tenant often finds it difficult to pay. Numerous complaints have led the government to take steps to abolish the tenure.

The project the commission is studying is one by which the various rural municipalities would be permitted to buy out all seigneurial rights from the seigneurs, spreading the instalments over a period of 20 or more years.

Feeding Harvest Hands

Typical Country Experience When The Threshing Crew Come To Dinner

Not long ago a Kansas girl said she had never seen harvest hands at dinner. It is true, but that anyone should miss this typical country experience, but, after all, unless you had cooked the dinner yourself, the full flavor of the occasion would be missing. You should get up early in the morning and bake your bread, wash the apples and meat while the men are milking. After breakfast you peel a dishpan of potatoes, chop up two heads of cabbage, and prepare the other vegetables in like amount, all the time fluttering to the stove to attack a fork in the roast and wondering if you put it on early enough.

You bring out all the extra table covers, which take two table cloths to leave, you make tea or coffee, and on hot days you prefer the former—stir up a gallon of gravy, and hope you'll be ready when they quit. And then, when the threshing men are laughing and joking as they take the wash pan and four clean towels to the well to wash up, and the women are then, dirty, dusty and sheding chaff, and still feel friendly, you have the true spirit of harvest time. But if you are not a country girl, you are grudging of your work, the pleasure of feeding a threshing crew is something you will never know. Find Hilda Tegge, in Cottonwood Falls, Leader.

Many Will Agree

Somerset Maugham Dislikes Getting Up In The Morning

"I forget who it was," writes Somerset Maugham, "but he recommended that for their soul's good he do each day two things they disliked; it was a wise man, and it is a precept that I have followed ever since. For every day I have got up and I have gone to bed." Although going to bed requires decision and is therefore unattractive, it is not a heroic act in getting up. The day includes twenty-four hours, with noon tossed in as a halfway mark between mere slouch and the inevitable morning. The hours in late enough to make getting up easy. Although thousands—perhaps millions—of people get up naturally every morning without complaint, they are simply creatures of habit or necessity. "Oh, how I hate to get up in the morning," the old army ballad says. "It's no use to get up in the morning," Harry Lauder used to sing, "but it's nice to be in bed." It certainly is. Getting up cannot compare with lying in bed—New York Times.

Although the King of England may refuse to approve any act passed by parliament, there is no record of any such action having been taken with in the past 200 years.

Nazis Busy With Uniforms

Warehouse And Business Block Financed By Nazi Party Funds

A vast official "arsenal," covering two city blocks, for storing Nazi uniforms and accoutrements, is being completed at Munich.

Keeping the Nazi in regulation brown uniforms—with his "dagger of honor" swinging at his side—has now become a major industry in the third reich.

The new business remains firmly in party hands. The huge warehouse and business block is financed entirely by Nazi party funds.

Prices of all pieces of uniform are dictated by party chiefs and profits go into the party treasury.

The new buildings, officially named "The National Ordnance Department," are four stories high, built of steel and cement and include a garage for 50 high-powered trucks. Business is brisk as each Nazi party branch—army troops, Black Guards, party officers and Hitler Youth, et al.—has his own individual paraphernalia. They are all minutely prescribed by the party ordinance, chief, down to the size and shape of tent-stakes, which are made of metal. A full Nazi uniform, cheapest quality, including pack, boots, canteen, etc., can be obtained for about $22.

Wireless direction finders for ships are being installed along the South African coast.

Token Of Goodwill

Winnipeg Receives Quarter Ton Of Rabbits From Australia

A quarter of a ton of rabbits was presented to the city of Winnipeg recently. The presentation was made to Mayor John Queen by L. R. MacGregor, Australian trade commissioner in Canada, as the mayor opened a local Australian exhibition. The rabbits are to be distributed among the public institutions of the city among those on relief, or among the poor, Mr. MacGregor said. The gift was being made as a mark of appreciation of Canadian goodwill towards Australia.

The Value Of Paper

Few People Realize What It Means To The World

Arthur Pond in Atlantic Monthly says lacking paper, history would be almost a blank. Geography still a fable; poetry a harp's song by the roadside; trade a matter of simple barter; and the productive arts still under rule of thumb. Each generation, instructed only by the word of mouth by elders schooled through crude experience, would have had to repeat to its own time, the errors of its forefathers, and all human knowledge would have been at the mercy of precarious memory.

Fifteen girl students of India recently toured Europe.

IT'S FOOTBALL TIME

Enlargements of long distance shots will often bring out the "action" detail of a football play (left). A shot from the side lines (right).

Hold that line! Hold that line! Yes, football season is with us again with its excited yelling, crowd, ruckus and joyous confusion of supporters of the winning team. What a paradise for the snapshot! He who goes to the game without his camera is missing golden opportunity. Pictures of the game, the crowds in the grandstands and informal shots of his classmates and friends will furnish him many hours of pleasure year after year as he looks back through his snapshot album.

There are countless opportunities for interesting, story-telling pictures at football games. All you have to do is use a little imagination. When you are blocked in the traffic and remark to the girl friend, "Gee, look at that line-up!" or "How do you like the game?" Don't stop with that. Take a picture. Don't be satisfied with stepping out of the car and just snapping a straight line of cars. Stand on the bumper and shoot down the traffic and crowds. The results will be much more pleasing than the ordinary, conventional view. The pictures you take at the game offers further opportunities for unusual snapshots. For instance, take a picture from the top of the grandstand (tips showing the crowds coming up the steps to their seats). A shutter speed of 1.50 of a second will stop the motion of the people as they walk directly toward your camera.

Stand on your seat and take a full view picture of the crowds in the grandstand and as you do this you may see some of your friends seated nearby. Attract their attention and let them wave with a cheer. "Hey, Bill," you can snap another interesting, story-telling picture. Even a chance, "Hold steady over your shoulder, they're taking unusual and pleasing pictures."

See today that your camera is ready for action. Look for the possibilities of the game determined to get the kind of pictures you will be proud to show your friends.

Increasing The Use Of Agricultural Products In The Automotive Industry

Ninety-three million honey bees are on the pay roll of one of the largest makers of American auto-mobiles—$3,000,000 buzzing, busy bees turning out beewax, which is used for various purposes in the automotive industry.

Besides, writes Malcolm McDowell in the Chicago Daily News, the same motor maker employs 800,000 bees, 87,000 goats, 10,000 cattle and 20,000 hogs, which contribute raw materials available in his factories.

When to all these industrialized creatures are added 112,000,000 feet of lumber, 2,400,000 pounds of linseed oil, 500,000 bushels of corn, 341,000 pounds of catnip oil, 2,500,000 gallons of molasses, 60,000 pounds of cotton, 1,800,000 pounds of soybeans, 2,000,000 pounds of turpentine and 728,000 gallons of tung oil, you get some idea of what American farms supply in one year, for just one make of automobiles and that without considering the agricultural products of like nature and other automobile manufacturers use annually.

Increasing the use of agricultural products in the automotive industry is one of the major purposes on the program of the Farm Chemistry Council. In forwarding this purpose a number of investigations by industrial chemists, under the general supervision of the research section of the council, will be carried out to develop new sources of raw material to be contributed by farmers and which can be made available in the automotive industry.

It follows, says chemists, that if bees hives are supplying material used in automobile making, why not do the same for other developments. Consequently, it is safe to venture the prediction that the busy bees will escape the scientific curiosity of the research chemists, seeing that 93,000,000 bees are now working for one auto concern.

Contact already has been made by the Farm Chemistry Council with the American Honey Institute of Madison, Wis. The institute has agreed to make available to the council all the information it has on the use of honey in the automotive industry.

Besides its general and longtime use as human food, honey, industrial chemists say, is a valuable material. It may be found in the centre of golf balls; it is a medium for curing tobacco pipes; it is an antiseptic in certain types of cosmetics; given as a boost in honey to enhance their beauty; it is an important ingredient in tooth pastes; it is used as a polish for car wheels; it enters into a water proofing for leather and is available for many other industrial purposes. Beeswax has numerous uses in the automotive industry and it is made into honey by the bees. Eight to ten pounds of honey are consumed by the bees to produce a single pound of beeswax.

The sweet honey by bees in flight is not honey; it is similar to the honey that is collected from the flowers. It is called nectar. Honey is the nectar of flowers, evaporated and modified by the bees. Actual weighings have shown that it takes 20,000 bees to bring to the hive one pound of nectar, which will make about a quarter of a pound of honey. So it would require the full time of 80,000 bees to bring in enough nectar to make a pound of honey and 80,000 more bees must turn them into honey. The bees, however, buzz their wings inside the hive to produce the air currents to evaporate the water from the nectar. Thus 160,000 bees must work to store up a pound of honey in the hive. Small wonder, then, that the automotive maker paid $3,000,000 bees on his pay roll.

Industrial chemists do not believe that honey and its main by-product, beeswax, will ever enter largely into the industry; they have regarded bees hives as the special responsibility of agricultural chemists. Nevertheless, they think they check the thousands of surprising discoveries made in the research laboratories by chemists investigating the industrial possibilities of corn, artichokes, peas, hemp, eggs, fruits, weeds, and other farm products they believe that honey, chemically known as a monosaccharide and which is much the same sugar that is found in most fruits, offers a promising field for industrial research.

It contains, besides levulose, said to be the sweetest of sugars, and dextrose, mineral elements such as calcium, iron, sodium, magnesium and phosphoric acid.

It would not be surprising if the chemical investigator would discover in honey a medicine as yet of unknown value, productive of wonderful effects.

That the bees will be subjected to a most exhaustive investigation in the laboratory of a research chemist seems to be certain. The fact findings of the investigator may lead to a much greater appreciation of its importance. The industrial and economic fields than now is apparent.

Thought Pictures

Use Scientific Instruments To Show The Thoughts On A Screen

The latest triumph of scientific cinematography is the taking of film pictures of a man's thoughts. The experiment was carried out at the Moscow Institute of the Brain. It has been known for some time that the brain in the process of thinking, generates minute electrical currents. Several preliminary experiments were, therefore, carried out on animals, recording their responses to such outside influences as light, heat, and cold. The latest, where it is possible to have human beings, the patient sits facing the movie camera and minute needles are pressed into the base of the temples. These are connected to wires which conduct the electric currents set up by the brain action to a transformer. The needles are magnified one thousand times and are made to actuate a hand on a dial. A slowly-moving film picture of the movements recorded on the dial. When the brain is at rest the fluctuations are small and regular and appear on the film as a perfectly straight line.

As soon as a question is fired at the patient the mental stimulus engendered by thinking causes the movement on the dial. Flash backwards and forwards and the film records rugged waves of peaks and valleys. Finally, several days into a straight line as the patient concentrates his thoughts and prepares to answer. The device is intended for use in the cure of mental ailments, a method by which to classify by comparison with normal thought records, the abnormal brain processes of a mentally deranged person, doctors will more readily be able to apply corrective measures to unruly thoughts.

Timothy Seed Prices

Large Production This Year Has Depressed Prices

Recently the Markets Division of the Seed Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, received a Chicago-based report which indicates an abnormally large production of this seed in Canada in 1935. It would appear that there may be about eleven million pounds of seed available for commerce as against five million pounds in 1934 and an annual consumption in recent years of approximately seven million pounds. Being to the surplus in 1934 Canada is now for the first time in history on an export basis in respect to this seed. In past years prices at Chicago plus freight and impact charges were the basis of value in Canada, whereas this year domestic prices may be based on Chicago quotations less freight and export charges. As a result of this changed situation prices are now very low. At this time last year Timothy seed was selling in Canada at fifteen to twenty cents per pound as against three to four and a half cents per pound at the present time. Surplus production this year resulted from two main factors, first, the high prices of last year which stimulated production and the abnormally large hay crop which permitted farmers generally to hold out for seed rather than cut for hay.

British-Admiral Presented Picture Apparatus To Leper Hospital

When Admiral Sir William Fisher, the first picture showman of the British Mediterranean fleet and an enthusiastic film fan, was told during his recent visit to Malta that the lepers of the island were suffering because they were forbidden to leave their camp he presented a talking picture apparatus to the leper hospital. The first picture shown was of the Jubilee in London. The lepers have placed a life-size portrait of Admiral Fisher in the hospital.

WAR CLOUDS THINNING

War's alarms seem still for the moment and the "backwoods" conflict being waged in Ethiopia looks as though it might be localized. The threat of a general European war emerging from the outbreak in northeast Africa has quietened.

From England we hear the irrepressible Lloyd George maintaining on public platforms that a "Deal" has already been arrived at between Italy, Great Britain and France, awaiting only the British election and a further advance by Mussolini's troops to be concluded officially.

British troops are being withdrawn from the Mediterranean and the situation which looked like war has changed into a quieter atmosphere. Of course nothing is ever sure in Europe and another incident may start things up again.

In the meantime the Italian armies are moving into Ethiopia. Their's is not a fighting job for the defending armies. They have no more chance of success against the well-drilled Italians than had the North American Indians against the French and British—less in fact, Italy's job is an engineering one and a policing one.

War clouds over Europe may be thinning out but a noticeable thing is the energy with which the great nations are re-arming. The League of Nations is undependable, they think, and it is back to big armies, big navies, big air fleets and plenty of materials of war.

Year round exposure to the sun makes the skin rough and dry, so the nudists can easily strike their matches.

BUILDING FOR STRENGTH

Shortly after the provincial election was held a suggestion was made publicly that the Social Credit government would "blow up in six months." The strength of purpose being exhibited by the premier and the rather astute moves he has made suggests that this forecast was wide of the mark.

The government of course is Premier Aberhart and he is rapidly proving himself to be somewhat of a past master in his moves. No one has caught him napping yet and he is building up a solid and substantial following and insuring their retention by far-sighted plans.

The introduction of Social Credit has been set aside for the time being, but the steps being taken to get the financial affairs of the province in order, to reorganize the government and to buttress the Social Credit party with press and radio support, suggests that when the real move is made there will be ample power behind it.

Any opponent that underestimates the new premier is in for a rude awakening. The premier has sources of strength that can be drawn upon and anyone can see that he is a man not easily moved from a fixed purpose.

NEW DEAL'S WANING POPULARITY

The "new deal" in the United States is having a tough time of it these days. The people of that country are getting tired of it. The conservatives think it has gone too far and shiver at the prospect of increased taxation, and the radicals think it has not gone far enough.

The courts are against the "new deal" and particularly the supreme court. The "gold clause" decision was given in favor of the government but since then other decisions have been consistently against it. As a whole the judiciary is conservative. Most judiciaries are. They are composed mostly of corporation lawyers whose training have been along traditional lines.

Even if this were not true the "new deal" could never hope to bring all its blossoms of hope into foliage. It was inaugurated to meet a crisis and certainly succeeded in re-establishing a measure of hope where all was gloom and despair.

The "new deal" may go down to defeat carrying with it the smiling President Roosevelt, but its influence will permeate United States' public life for generations to come.

AN EPIC STORY — FIFTY YEARS OLD

It is fifty years since the Canadian Pacific railway completed the building of the first Canadian transcontinental line. Just half a century ago the full bearded shrewd and Scotch Donald Smith heaved a track-layer's hammer high into the mountain air at Craigellachie among the high Rockies and brought it forcibly down upon the head of the last spike. Truth to tell the blow was not a good clean one for the spike turned over sideways. Another one was quickly produced and Mr. Smith (afterwards Lord Strathcona) hammered it into the tie.

The C.P.R. is making quite a fuss over the fiftyth anniversary of the completion of the line. Murray Gibson has written a book on the subject and newspapers are full of stories about the railway and its history. While the C.P.R. at times may not have been popular with the majority of Canadians, and was frequently the butt of abuse whenever elections were being held, still many people in the Dominion have a lurking admiration for the big railway organization and not little pride in its achievements.

It took a lot of fortitude to build the C.P.R. in the '80s of the last century. It took a vast amount of that stuff that seems to be sadly lacking in only too many Canadians these years. Big men built that road and while they made large financial rewards who can say that they did not deserve a great deal of what they got? The history of the Canadian Pacific Railway is a subject Canadians should know something about for it is the relation of an epochal event in the life of this country. The only other event we can recall that transcends it in importance is confederation.

Of course the financial world laughed when the transcontinental railway was mooted. Henry Labouchere, London, England, journalist, gained fame by knocking the project as a financial chimera. He gained the fame because he was so wrong in everything he said. The "cold water" thrown on the scheme was sufficient to discourage all but the most fearless, stronghearted. How they ever financed is still a mystery although the abbreviated story has been told and retold.

The building of the road through the Rockies was another gigantic task. Even today, with all our advancement in science and engineering, one wonders at the work of those men in the '80s! Surely there were giants in those days!

"Got any rivers they say are uncrossable? Got any mountains you can't tunnel through?"

We specialize in the wholly impossible. Doing the thing that no one can do."

The hardest passage way through the Rockies — the Kicking Horse Pass — was selected and the opinion has often been expressed that a serious mistake was made by so doing. But there was a reason for this which we have never seen in print, but have heard expressed verbally. Foxey old Jim Hilt, builder of the Great Northern railway in the United States, wanted the C.P.R. running through the western states for a considerable portion of the way. When he saw that an all-Canadian route was planned he sought to offset the move by shooting feeder lines northward to tap Canada at the boundary. Had the C.P.R. built through the Yellowhead Pass the Great Northern railway would certainly have been in the southern prairie regions. The Yellowhead is unquestionably the better route. It has lower grades and construction was simpler and cheaper. But the whole history of the west would have been changed had the northern route been chosen and possibly not for the best.

Well, they built the C.P.R. and it was a success in every way, until the depression struck in 1929, after which finances became pretty limp. The company had used up its resources rather lavishly in competing with the Canadian National railway and the drop in rail traffic, together with inroads in express and freight haulage by trucks, has put the C.P.R. in a tough spot. The future looks cloudy but if better times return and railways adjust themselves to new conditions the C.P.R. should emerge from its troubles.

Western Canada has not reached the end of its string by any means and as the west progresses, so will the C. P. R.

A disastrous fire in the nearby town last poor Joy. The ornately clad, with nothing but his nightgown. Well, at that he is still ahead of the farmer. With the rest of our belongings, our lovely pink and yellow robe disappeared when the depression came, but since we have grown accustomed to turning in "full kit" at the close of the day, we aren't the least bit envious of the guys who must do up with frogs and ribbons before they can woe the goddess of slumber.

Interviewed by a newspaperman the other day, a professor at one of western universities said that although the big snowfall was likely to be hurtful to stockmen and farmers in dry areas, it would prove a very welcome and a dreadful joy to the hoot. "Hoot now!" We'll say the learned gent takes a most cheerful view of other people's weather.

Hearing a lady tell a tragic little story of old Erin reminded the writer of a sparkling tale written by the British author, Scotland's own, Conan Doyle. "The Green Place" is the title thereof, and if you haven't read it, perhaps the following will induce you to do so when a favorable opportunity arrives. A disaffected regiment, forming part of a small British force operating in Northern Africa, breaks into open rebellion in the face of the enemy, and despite the prayers and curses of the officers, the men refuse to stand and fight.

Smoothing, "Do hell with the queen," and other defiant statements, the men and the retire in disorder. Seeing this unexpected movement, the hostile tribes fall on the shattered ranks and a dreadful slaughter begins. Charged at the spectacle, one old soldier leaps into the centre of the retreating comrades and demands they do so when a favorable opportunity arrives. A disaffected regiment, forming part of a small British force operating in Northern Africa, breaks into open rebellion in the face of the enemy, and despite the prayers and curses of the officers, the men refuse to stand and fight.

Then, as the battle clouds around them, he points to the little green flag and shouts to his wavering friends: "Will ye stand for this, boys?"

How the Irish answered the question makes the heart beat faster and leaves the reader lamenting that the emotion and distrust still keep Merry England and the Evergreen Isle far apart.

"Like any of you boys a cigarette" was the way our new governor-general greeted the pressmen on his arrival in this country.

Instantly there followed a scramble to see who would be the first on the job with a pill.

Being a very curious individual, we are wondering if we'd been so promptly served by the scotch if we had introduced the subject instead of his excellency.

We have our doubts, men.

As Canadians, we have one thing which we are not grateful enough for. It is the friendly relationship existing between our own land and the great republic to the south of us. Unlike the citizens of many European nations, we do not have to pass many sleepless nights wondering what sinister program the next day will bring.

The statements of the two countries are not eternally threatening to loose death from land, sea and air, and above all, the children of Jack Canuck and Uncle Samuel mingle in pleasure and business with a spirit of goodwill which other races would do well to emulate.

Now we'll go and referee a hockey game, so if we don't show up again, you can rightly conclude that some enraged player of the visiting team has ended our earthly sorrows by dropping us through a hole in the ice.

During a recent rain storm, a police officer observed a woman leaving a store with her skirts pulled up literally over her head.

Officer: "Hey, lady, you will get your legs wet doing that."

Lady: "That's all right. They are forty-eight years old, but my hat's new."

AND THEN HE WROTE A LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Mail solicits the opinions of its readers on any question or issue of the day; letters without names or addresses to show bona fides will not be considered. Opinions expressed in this column do not necessarily agree with the opinions of this newspaper.

Editor, Bassano Mail.

Sir: The Social Credit people argue that banks in lending money are enjoying a private monopoly of a public asset—i.e., the credit of the country. I am not a specialist in banking, accounting, theology, engineering, social credit or evangelism, but it does seem to me that application of honest sense to the question which is today so much in the eye of the public and of your correspondents will show that the social credit people to be wrong.

The Douglasites appear to claim that my cash and that of all other people who have built up a bank account becomes in some mysterious way a national asset which belongs to the community. With that I vehemently disagree.

Owners of individual parcels of land have the only rights on the properties. They have, of course, the important right of leasing their owner's rights to other people. But except for non-payment of just debts including taxes, no one on this earth has the right to take their property away from them, or to claim that the community share the ownership.

This condition is also true of bank deposits. My bank account, such as it is, is my own. I acquired it through the sweat of my brow. It is mine like my forty-foot lot. It is not the public's, like High Park. I lease my cash, to the chartered bank. They pay me rental, at a low rate because they agree to give me possession on a moment's notice on any business day. In return for paying me rent for my money, the bank has the privilege of investing it in loans or otherwise. I have the character of the bank's investment to the bank's discretion, because I have confidence in it.

If I lost confidence in the bank, I could withdraw my money and deposit it elsewhere. The bank's deposit would be akin to confiscation of the deposits of these 4,000,000 depositors.

Yours very truly,

H. G. Robinson.

ENGLISH

AS THE ENGLISH SPEAK IT

If you were introduced to an Englishman whose name sounded like Harf, you'd better look it up before writing him a letter. The chances are that it is spelled "Harage." And if he went to Oxford, he may have lived in Magdalen College—and called it Maudlin. Ever since the unsuspecting American learned that Mr. Chomley pronounced his name Chumly (you've probably heard how the American retailed by referring to Niagara Falls as Niffies), he has trodden softly before the vagaries of English spelling and pronunciation. How is he to know, for instance, that Portished is pronounced Poshit Or that Dillist strongly becomes Deall and Writhebeader, Rosty? Or that McIllycuddy — that famous American baseball name—is clipped into Ma-chill-oddy? There are no rules for this sort of thing. He may learn to greet Mr. Heaulcher as Mo-chur, only to be tripped up by Mr. Beaulieu, who calls himself Bewly. Take the case of the Saints: St. Aubyn is, not unconvincingly, St. Awbda, and St. John Irvine is well known as Blajan. But that hardly prepares us for the miracle by which St. Leger becomes Shilling. There is one name, however, that even the English had to give up on. That name is Sawbridge, and is pronounced today just as it is spelled. But the English were not always so lax. They used to call it Sap-see.

CANADIAN APPETITES

The average Canadian eats 68 pounds of beef in one year, besides 4 1/2 pounds of pork, 4 1/2 pounds of lamb and mutton and about 10 lbs. of poultry. At least these were the consumption figures for 1934. In that year the Canadians increased their per capita meat consumption by 12 lbs. and decreased per capita pork consumption by 5 pounds. The switch was due to the increased price of pork and comparatively lower price of beef.

The average Canadian in 1934 consumed 21 pounds of butter and 868 eggs, to say nothing of 3 1/4 pounds of cheese.

Adam—Eve, you're gone and put my dress suit in the salad again.

Look at it This Way!

A retail store regards itself as being a public servant. Therefore, it is wholly fitting that it should try to be the best and most eager servant possible. A retail store which hides its goods from those whom it wants to employ it becomes under-employed, and so its sales decline.

The public inclines in largest numbers toward those stores which seek its attention and custom. It takes the advertising store at its own valuation. It likes to do business with those who manifest eagerness to serve it. It likes to buy at those stores which have to renew their stocks frequently.

Advertising is just communicating news and information about one's store and service. It is just a form of talking. It is those who talk who are listened to. Silent stores lose out to stores which carry on conversations—in the form of newspaper advertisements—with those whose custom they want.

Any retailer who wants to get more customers — for the replacement of customers who become lost to him and for the expansion of his business — can surely get them by making his store advertisements in the paper, and by putting in his advertisements the kind of information which will help buyers come to decisions.

Our newspaper's advertising department is ever willing to help retailers prepare the right kind of advertisements—free assistance of course.

Ma (greeting postman husband): Why, Pa, you look all tuckered out!

Pa: I sure am—I've been looking all over town for a guy named Frankie.

R. Janssen (bragging): Aha, my boy! When I played "Hamlet" the audience took fifteen minutes to leave the theatre.

Dar: Why? Was he lame?

Gai: What a wonderfully developed arm you have, Wes.

Wes: Yeah, I got that playing basketball. By the way, were you ever on the track team?

"Drink," said the Irish lecturer, "is the greatest curse of this country. It makes you quarrel with your neighbors. It makes you shoot at your landlord, and it makes you miss him."

One jet dark night last week, McKey passed through a barnyard on the prairie. His hat blew off, and in feeling around for it he picked up and tried on eleven before he found the right one. Next!

A newly created page received the glad tidings in a telegram: "Hazel gave birth to a little girl this morning; both doing well."

On the message was a sticker reading: "When you want a boy call Western Union."

Facts are facts. The reporter was sent to write up a charity ball. Next day the editor called him to his desk: "Look here, what do you mean by this 'Amos the most beautiful girl' was Horatio Lucian Dingley? Way, you crazy idiot! Old Dingley isn't a girl—and besides, he's one of the principal stockholders."

"I can't help that," returned the realistic reporter. "That's where he was."

Kennedy (fishing): Well, that was certainly a great spot we found. By the way, did you mark the position of it?

Frances: Sure I did. I put an "X" on the bottom of the boat.

Kennedy: You darn fool. We might not get the same hook another time.

WOMEN'S VICES AND VIRTUES SHOWN

Woman had man kicked out of the garden of Eden, made him go to work, and has kept him at it ever since.

Women are divided into two classes—women who talk most of the time and those who are planted in concrete.

Women have worked men out of every job except that of being a father. A woman may have twenty-seven hand-painted handkerchiefs each draped with a dress, and then say she hasn't a rag to her back, while a man will look through the shiny seat of his pants and be filled with hope that they will keep him from indecent exposure until the coat is paid for.

A woman will have eleven other women in to bridge, spend fourteen dollars on roses, prizes, salted peanuts, whipped cream and olives, and if a man brings home to dinner a good old scout who has saved him from the sheriff, the ball and chain will tell him that she isn't running a soap kitchen for all the bums in town.

A woman will cut her dress down from the top or up from the bottom for the benefit of man, and then say she has been insulted should he take an effort to show his appreciation.

A woman is soft of flesh, soft of heart and often soft of head, but she becomes harder than case-hardened roller-bearings when some other woman speaks to her handle carrier. If a man shows little interest in his wife she says he is leading a double life, and if he is nice to her she says he has a guilty conscience and runs a temperature wondering who the frozen hussy is.—McGill Daily.

HUSSAR, Nov. 12.—Mr. and Mrs. J. E. King, who spent last week in Calgary, returned on Friday.

Mr. C. T. Armstrong returned from Calgary on Friday.

Messrs. A. Andersen, B. J. Grant and Miss Nettie LeGrandeur motored to Calgary on Thursday. Mr. Grant went up to attend the high school teachers' convention, returning by train on Monday.

The blizzard on Friday evening was a keen disappointment to the teachers in this community as they had planned to spend the long week end in Calgary.

There will be a meeting of the teachers of this community in the school house on Saturday afternoon. Owing to the condition of the roads there were no church services here on Sunday.

Messrs. Ivan Montgomery and L. F. Snyder will join the hunting party up north this week.

At 7 p.m. on Monday a fire was discovered in the lean-to back of the Co-operative store, among egg crates.

Every man in town turned out and by dint of the bucket brigade and six fire extinguishers, the fire was put out within an hour. The store at the corner of the street opposite the scene of the last fire was in such a position that if the fire had gotten Isn't It The Truth?

Over the hill trailed a man behind a mule drawing a plow. Said the man to the mule: "If you are a mule, the son of a jackass, and I am a man, made in the image of God. Yet here we work, year in and year out. I wonder if you work for me or if I work for you. Verily, I think it is a partnership between mule and fool, for sometimes I work as hard as you if not harder. Plowing and cultivating we cover the same ground but you do it on four legs and I do it on two; I therefore do twice as much as you do."

"Soon we'll be preparing for another corn crop. When the crop is harvested I give one third to the landlord for being so kind as to let us use this small speck of God's universe. One third goes to you and the balance is mine. You consume all your portion with the exception of the cobs while I divide my portion with seven children, six hens, two ducks, and the banker. If we both need shoes, you get 'em. If I am getting the best of me and I ask,—is it fair for a mule, the son of a jackass, to strangle a man, a creature of the Lord, out of his substance?"

"Why, you only help to plow and cultivate the ground, and I, alone, must cut, stack, and husk the corn, while you look over the fence and breathe at me."

"All fall and most of the winter the whole family helps in order that we may manage to buy new harness and pay the interest on the mortgage on you. And what do you care about the mortgage? Not a darn. You ornery mule, I even have to do the worrying about the mortgage on your fough, ungrateful hide."

"About the only time I am better off on election day, for I can vote and you can't. And after election I realize I was as big a jackass as your papa. Verily, I am prone to wonder if politics was made for men or jackasses or to make jackasses of men."

"And that ain't all, Bill. When you're dead that's supposed to be the end of you. But me!" The parson says I am bound for the lower regions forever. That is, Bill, if I don't do just as he says. And most of what he says we me from getting any kick out of life."

"Tell me, Willyum, considering these things, how can you keep a straight face and look so dumb and solemn?"—Ex.

HERE'S TO YOU

An old Dutchman, returning to Holland from a visit to the States, was asked by a friend what in his estimation was the strangest thing he had noticed and he replied: "The United States has many wonderful things, but the strangest is a drink, called the cocktail—and here is how they make it. They put in whiskey to make it strong, then water to make it weak; gin to make it hot and ice to make it cold; lemon to make it sour and sugar to make it sweet; then they say, 'Here's to YOU!' And drink it themselves."—Ex.

Out of control probably the whole street would have gone. As it is the estimated damage is about $50.

Mrs. Jones, who has been housekeeper for Mr. Dave McEachern, left put out within an hour. The store at the corner of the street opposite the scene of the last fire was in such a position that if the fire had gotten

MAKING UP A SHOPPING LIST

The hall needs a new rug. More towels are needed for the bathroom, and the kitchen floor could certainly stand a coat of paint. The children need shoes. The car will soon need tires. Well, we buy a hundred new things every year.

Scattered throughout Canada are manufacturers who make the very things we need. Their products are on sale in certain stores within easy reach. Certain of these products, and certain of these stores, are especially fitted to take care of our special need. But which products and which stores? Which can we afford, and which do we think is best? We must look to advertising for advice.

Advertising is the straight line between supply and demand. It saves time spent in haphazard shopping. It leads you directly to your goal. By reading the advertisements, we can determine in advance where the best values are to be found. With the aid of advertising, shopping becomes a simple and pleasant business, and budget figures bring more smiles than frowns.

From the pages of this paper you can make up a shopping list that will save you money.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Anna Hlyshynska Yelizarova-Ulyanova, sister and close collaborator of Nikolai Lenin, died at Moscow at the age of 71.

Joseph Charlebois, artist and cartoonist, well known for his work in La Presse, Montreal, died in hospital here in that city recently.

Regular fall shipments of agricultural exports were reported by the commerce department to have hit total United States exports 15 per cent, between September and August.

A striking longshoreman was shot to death at Port Arthur and two non-union dock workers were missing after non-union workers and a group of non-union engaged in hand-to-hand fighting.

The council of the international labor bureau of the League of Nations may designate Canada to occupy the seat in the bureau made vacant by the withdrawal of Germany from the league, it was reported.

Of the 10,578,818 bushels of wheat imported by China in the first four months of 1935, Australia supplied 7,501,536 bushels. Argentine supplied most of the remainder while imports from United States and Canada were negligible.

All premises used as grandstands for mixing stations were condemned by the Manitoba government as unsuitable for holding quarters for any person. The action was taken in a result of 25 roadworkers housed in a mixing station, being stricken with poison recently.

Purchasers of new cars in November and December this year will not be required to buy a part-time 1935 Ontario automobile license. It has been announced. Instead, these purchasers can buy their 1936 plates after Nov. 1 and these licenses will carry them to the end of December, 1936.

Canton Takes Action

Would Ban Small Merchants From Importing Old Newspapers
The practice of small merchants in China, who wrap purchases in old American newspapers, may be halted by a measure put before the Canton Government to curtail such imports. The Department of Commerce reports.

The extent of the practice is shown by the fact that the city of Canton alone imported over $1,000,000 worth of such old newspapers in 1934. Chinese paper manufacturers succeeded last year in stopping the merchants from wrapping fresh food, stuffs, the Commerce Department said, and it is now planned to prohibit the importation of old newspapers.

South Africa's 1935 maize crop is estimated at 17,941,000 bags.

Was Famous Cartoonist

Sidney Smith Creator Of The Gumps,
Killed In Automobile Accident

An automobile crash in Illinois ended the career of Sidney Smith, cartoonist-philosopher, who made "Oh Min" and "Sally's On" household phrases in many hands.

The veteran creator of "The Gumps," "Old Doc Yak" and "Ching Chow" who dropped pearls of wisdom and humor from his lips each day, was dead when they removed him from the wreckage of his car.

Smith, who was 58, married with Claire Biceps as probably the greatest portrayer of family life through the medium of cartoons. The daily doings of Andy and Min Gump, Little Chester and the fabulously wealthy Uncle Ben, their joys and their sorrows, have been a comic page feature for years.

More recently Smith introduced "Ching Chow," a little Oriental of few words and much wisdom. This last cartoon was made to tell readers such things as "The slave has but one master," the ambitious as many as there are people likely to be useful to him.

Smith's noted career started when he sat, making him one of the real oldsters of the rank. The ranks of the veterans are thin. "Gus" Herliem, artist drawer of "Krazy Kat" and Bud Fisher, creator of "Mutt and Jeff," remaining as probably the two best known among the old hands.

Among the intimate little twigs Smith got out of his work was the license number 348. Long ago it appeared on Yak's auto. Then he transferred it to Andy Gump's half-sister's baggy. Only Smith's intimates knew that 348 was the cartoonist's own motor permit number and was issued to him for many years.

Smith's attorney, E. Williams, disclosed that a few hours before he died, the cartoonist had renewed his contract with the Chicago Tribune-New York News syndicate. He said it stipulated the payment of $750,000 for a five-year term.

A native of Bloomington, Ill., Smith had been a staff member of the Chicago Tribune since 1911. He began his career as a cartoonist on the Bloomington Eye in 1895.

Work Ahead Of Schedule Thousands Of Workmen Busy On Liner Queen Mary

The London Times says the work of fitting out the Queen Mary so that she may be ready to leave Clydebank for Southampton in the early morning of 1935 is ahead of schedule. Day in and day out some 4,000 skilled workmen are busily engaged on the vessel herself, apart from the many thousands engaged on her equipment and fittings.

Nearly all the machinery has now been installed. One consequence is that the giant liner is "now sitting considerably lower in the water than she was at the time of the launch. Then she weighed approximately 40,000 tons, but to-day she is much nearer the 73,000 tons which will be her weight when she goes to sea.

The provision of the passenger accommodation is more advanced than may be at first apparent. The 25 public rooms will be unusually large. The first-class dining room will hold 800 passengers at one sitting, and will have a 30-foot high roof. The two large swimming pools will be resplendent in marble. The enclosed promenade deck, which measures approximately 1,200 feet in length, has been fitted throughout with hundreds of shipside windows.

The Clyde between Clydebank and the Tail of the Bank is an exceedingly narrow and winding stream, and it is probable that it will be made of two tides for the journey to sea, although experts are confident they could take the ship down-stream on one tide. The most favorable tides will probably occur about May 18, 19 or 20 next year.

Not far from the fitting-out berth there is a rocky outcrop in the river. The liner starts her journey. At certain parts "runners" in the light will be stationed out. The Clyde Light House Trust has the preparation of the river for this momentous trip well in hand.

Canadian Premiers
Fifteen Ministers Since The Time Of Confederation

After all these weeks of discussion of Canadian affairs, how many could name the premiers since Confederation, 1867? Sir John A. Macdonald, 1867; Sir John A. Macdonald, 1873; Sir John A. Macdonald, 1878; Sir John Abbott, 1891; Sir John Thompson, 1892; Sir Mackenzie Bowell, 1894; Sir Charles Tupper, 1896; Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 1896; Sir Robert Borden, 1911; Sir Arthur Meighen, 1920; Hon. W. L. King, 1921; Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, 1926; Hon. R. B. Bennett, 1930; and now Sir John Diefenbaker, 1935.

These fifteen premiers, two being headed by Sir Robert Borden during his tenure of office, one being Conservative and the other the Unionist War Cabinet.

"I am sorry," he said, "but I could never marry a re-buffed man."

"Then may I propose again next year?" he asked.

"But it will be the same thing then."

"No; my hairdresser says I shall be bald in a year."

For home to look good to many people, it is necessary for them to get a long distance away from it.

PATTERN 5458
The toque is again in high favor with Dame Fashion. She well knows how easy it is to wear. And this one in crochet meets with her loud approval for all her forecasts point to crochet as an outstanding note for Fall and Winter. The toque is so simple to make and has, as clear instruction, a simple effect. It is very lovely. The muff-purse—and how we all love that—repeats the design of the toque. Its shirred ruffles and fulness give it a feminine note that will add much to your appearance.

In pattern 5458 you will find complete instructions for making the set shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches used; material requirements. To obtain this pattern send 20 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to Household Arts Dept., Winnipeg Newspaper Union, 175 McDermott Ave., E., Winnipeg.

Nearly Two Million Dollars Set Aside
For Air Site

A 500-acre property four miles from Sydney, N.E., has been selected as the site for a $1,750,000 North American terminus of the projected ocean air service. C. H. Clendinning, chairman of the Irish Transatlantic Air Corporation, announced recently.

Owned by the Nova Scotia government, the property has been decided to the corporation and will be developed along the lines proposed for the eastern terminus at Londonderry, northern Ireland.

Planning the "quickest practical route" for air transportation between the Old Country and North America, the chairman said the terminus at Sydney would be leased to other corporations connecting the ocean service with Canadian and United States lines. The planes, he said, would provide accommodation for 45 persons beside facilities for handling mail.

SYNOPSIS

Nancy Nelson is a sub-deb, a free irresponsible girl of nineteen, with no care beyond the choice of her costume for her coming-out party. Suddenly, in the market crash, her indulgent father loses all he had, and his family is faced with the necessity of a simpler method of living. At this juncture a letter is received from an eccentric relative, a big farmer, who offers the girl a home on what seems to be impossible conditions.

After much consideration Cousin Columbine's offer is accepted, and Nancy and Jack arrive at Pine Ridge. Nancy sets out on a determined climb to the top of a hill so as to obtain a view of the surrounding landscape and misses the path. Aunt Luke has broken his leg, and that Jack Nelson has been hired to help out while Luke's leg gets better. With Jack away, Nancy finds that she is lonely and having no books to read, the idea of starting a public library at Pine Ridge strikes her, and she writes home to ask her parents to send all the books they could spare and all they could induce others to lend her.

Nancy's parents and friends give their liberal support to her request for books, and a straddle box arrived in due course. Father Adam plants a sign for the library, and the Adams boys worked on the shelves for the books and decorations to make the room look respectable.

Jack Nelson, Matthew Adam, and Nancy go to the prairie home of Matthew's uncle for the ride, and after Nancy and Jack leave for home, they are caught in a blizzard. Blinded by the swirling snow they collide with a bus full of school children, which was heading across the road with the back wheels resting in a snow-filled gully. Their car being wrecked, and Nancy stay with the children and do all they can to help them. Jack acts for help in the blizzard. He succeeds in finding help, and the party of children and Nancy are rescued. As a result of the experience Nancy's feelings for Adam and Jack is seriously ill with pneumonia, but both of them recover.

Now to Go With The Story

He blushed a little; and Nancy said: "I'll admit that Jack is too plucky to leave even the cold shelter of his own kitchen. But to make a fuss over me is just ridiculous! I'd have been a coward to watch those kiddies freeze to death and not do everything I could. You know I would!"

There was silence a moment before Matt asked: "Do you remember the last time we sat under the old pine, Nancy? You told me that that your courage had never been tested and you wondered how you'd show up in a pinch. Well, you know now, don't you?"

Science has discovered why Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is so much more beneficial than plain cod liver oil. All plain oils are hard to digest; they are slow to get to the stomach. We emulsify the oil in our Laboratory, hence it is broken for almost immediate digestion and assimilation.

"I'd forgotten that," she answered softly; then lowered her voice still more, her face flushing a little. "Matt, you tell me something, honestly? I can't ask Cousin Columbine, she looks so worn and tired; and I've got to ask it about my feet. These papers said I'd lose them—that my feet were so badly spoiled to the knees. Was that the truth?"

"Yes, that was true, Nancy. I'm never going to forget the way I felt when the nurse told me an amputation wasn't necessary. I wanted to cheer, or—cry or something. Miss Columbine did cry when I told her."

Nancy smiled, and it struck her young man that she was still frightened.

"Is there something else you want to know?"

"Only—only—well, Matt carried me upstairs when I came home. Matt. Are my feet really all right?"

So she'd been feeling their aching and worrying about that! thought Matthew. Oh, she was wonderful.

"Of course they're all right!" he reassured her. "You could walk on them now, only the doctor said you weren't to go too fast. That's straight, Nancy. I wouldn't deceive you a time like this."

The girl sank back limply against her pillow.

"I suppose I'm a moron; but I've wanted to ask that question for days, and was so scared!" She smiled now, at her own foolishness, and added: "If all those complimentary newspaper reporters knew I was terrified at the thought of ending my life in a wheelchair, I guess they'd be disgustfully disillusioned!"

"Disillusioned!" Matt's eyes flashed with protective indignation. "Disillusioned!"

"Are you planning to stay to dinner, Matt?" called Aurora shrilly. "If so, and you're waiting to carry up three trays, you and Miss Columbine can eat with Nancy. What say?"

CHAPTER XXII.

"I am well aware, dear Cousin James," wrote Cousin Columbine Nelson on the first day of May, "how anxious you are to get your heroic young folks back; but nevertheless, I am going to ask a favor. Let them stay just a few days longer. If I'm needed, he looked so splendid the morning they started off for Prairie House that I can't bear to send him home to get a good rest. He is not a few weeks of careful feeding will work wonders in his appearance; and Aurora Tubbs is itching to fast him up, as she expresses it. If I'm kept there until after the fourth of July they'll have a chance to see so much more of this wonderful country, and our old cousin will be far happier."

A note from Nancy added her plea: "Don't ever think that we're not crazy to see you all, but Jack is a beanpole, and Aurora's marvelous cooking ought to fix that in no time. Then too, Uncle Tom and Aunt Kent want to see Frannie Hunch for a few days, just to convince us, I imagine, that the plains can be warm and friendly as well as cold and cruel. A visit there will be coming to me, member; and anyway, Jack refuses to go home until he's husky enough to handle a pick and shovel and can swing up the gate posts at Cousin Columbine's driveway. They trouble him a great deal more than they do her!"

But she does want you all, but Jack is a beanpole, and Aurora's marvelous cooking ought to fix that in no time. Then too, Uncle Tom and Aunt Kent want to see Frannie Hunch for a few days, just to convince us, I imagine, that the plains can be warm and friendly as well as cold and cruel. A visit there will be coming to me, member; and anyway, Jack refuses to go home until he's husky enough to handle a pick and shovel and can swing up the gate posts at Cousin Columbine's driveway. They trouble him a great deal more than they do her!"

"But I'm feeling wonderful now. My feet are as good as new. The library's booming; and I still get something of a kick when any one addresses me as 'Miss Aladdin.' I've not gone back on New England, Daddy; but I'll miss the library and those big open spaces we Easterners joke about. Tell Phil I'm sending him some real Indian arrow heads."

Though the family at Edgemore was disappointed, this plan was obviously best for Jack, and they did not protest. The boy's strength returned more rapidly than Cousin Columbine anticipated; and by the middle of May they ventured to make some of the long-promised excursions to places not far distant enough to tire him.

"I'm sick to death of putting up picnic lunches," grumbled Aurora one bright May morning. "And why any body in their senses should go to Cripple Creek when they could stay here, is something entirely beyond me. Not a tree in the whole town, Nancy Nelson! Not a growing thing leasen you count sage; and those awful prospect holes all over the hills lookin' for all the world like open graves in a cemetery. And here's Miss Columbine as excited over the trip as if she'd never seen a mine! I'm let alone lived in one of the peckly places for months on end! Jack, you're to drink every drop of milk in this thermos bottle; if you feel like to digest 'em, eat three bananas."

They're powerful fattenin', as I ought to know if anybody does. Is it true, Eve Adam's takin' a whole roast chicken? I hope for your sakes her husband had the cookin' of it. Looks like the Adams is neglectin' every thing these days to take you gallivantin'. It's a wonder they stop to milk the cows."

Eve Adam laughed when Nancy repeated this caustic comment.

"But who cares, my dear? We'll make up the neglected work of the last winter by taking a little trip to see how Miss Columbine enjoys these trips. It gives her a new lease of life to visit the old scenes and talk with the young folks who are really interested."

Jack thrilled over that trip to Cripple Creek, but the day they visited the scene of Mark Pennington's colossal hawk, stood out a high light in Nancy's memory. This was during the first week in June, a day with soft, white clouds drifting across the sky, and air like mid-summer. Their road led past ranches where men were ploughing immense areas; then on through miles of fields of yellow fields. Seated between Mark and Matthew in the old truck (the comfort of the new 'Adams being given over to the older Adams, Cousin Columbine, and Jack), Nancy caught her breath at occasional glimpses of distant hills, and she wondered.

"I'm all but speechless over this scenery," she confessed, while the boys smiled in amusement at her enunciation. "I take a notion to go with a backward glance toward Luke and Mary Taylor, seated on cushions in the rear," they were jabbering away as if there were no wonders to behold. "What shall I say?"

"Love's young dream, lady!" Mark opined as he slowed down for an entrance. "I take a notion to go with a backward glance toward Luke and Mary Taylor, seated on cushions in the rear," they were jabbering away as if there were no wonders to behold. "What shall I say?"

Don't Guess But
KnowWhether the "Pain"
Remedy You Use
is SAFE?Don't Entrust Your Own or Your Family's
Well-Being to Unknown
Preparations

THE person to ask whether the preparation you or your family are using for the relief of headache is SAFE to use regularly is your family doctor. Ask him particularly about "ASPIRIN."

He will tell you that before the discovery of "Aspirin" that "pain" remedies were advised against by physicians as bad for the stomach and, often, for the heart. Which is food for thought if you seek quick, safe relief.

Scientists rate "Aspirin" among the safest methods yet discovered for the relief of headaches and the pains of rheumatism, neuritis and neuralgia. And the experience of millions of users has proved it safe for the average person to use regularly. In your own interest remember this:

"Aspirin" Tablets are made in Germany. "Aspirin" is the registered trademark of the Bayer Company, Limited. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

Demand and Get
"ASPIRIN"

His voice was thoughtful, and with sudden inspiration the girl quoted: "Under the wide and starry sky Dig my grave and let me lie."

"So that how you feel, Matt?" His eyes lighted at her intuition; but before he could reply, Mark's laughing voice broke in upon them. "Pain sets me into an appropriate young lady; but you two seem to have forgotten that we're on our way. The old folks have caught up with us but they're too lazy to get out, and Jack's already expressed his unalloyed sense. There's still ten minutes left if we hurry. Let's get our lunch on the shore of the lake, as Miss Columbine has set her heart on doing. Have some cake?"

Matthew, who longed to strangle his brother for this intrusion, nevertheless accepted his portion with good grace; while Nancy exclaimed: "You've saved my life, Mark! I'm almost passing out. Isn't the Platte the river we read about in history?"

Rise in Diamond Prices

Increase To Release More Stones
For The World Market

London's diamond kings, controllers of the world's supply, are to release for sale more uncut stones within a short time than were sold throughout the whole of the last year.

So convinced are they in England that the world has recovered enough to indulge once more in luxuries that prices are being advanced 75 per cent, and there is confidence that all stones offered will be sold.

Although stones worth more than $15,000,000 will be offered to selected buyers from all parts of the world within two months, The Diamond Corporation, which has accumulated $45,000,000 worth of stones during the years of depression, has been allocated a quota in the sales. Invitations already have been dispatched to representative brokers in Amsterdam, Antwerp, Vienna, Paris, Bombay and New York.

The central selling agency of the diamond groups is in a four-story building off Holborn. Every foreign buyer is shown into a walnut-paneled room. He is accompanied by a representative of the sellers. On a square of plain white paper on a ledge under the window is poured a little heap of graded, uncut stones. It represents a fortune.

The buyer examines the stones, makes his choice, pays his price and departs with a tiny package as casually as if he had purchased a bag of nuts.

Biggest buyers are expected to be New York and India. U.S. jewellers' stocks are believed to be lowest since the depression. India's demand is based on "hoarding" of gold by the princes.

Little Helps For This Week

Love is of God, and every one that loveth is born of God and knoweth God. I John 4:7.

Forbearing one another and forgiving one another. Colossians 3:12.

Oh, might we all our lineage prove Give and forgive, do good and love.

By not giving, we are in kind, Lightening the daily load of life.

We may if we choose make the worst of our own nature. Every one has his faults, every one his weak points, and we may fix our attention constantly on these. But we may also meet the best of one another. We may forgive even as we hope to be forgiven. We may put ourselves in the shoes of others and ask ourselves if we would wish to be done to us as we were in their place. By living whatever is lovable in those around us, we will flow back from them as life will be a pleasure instead of a pain. Earth will become life heaven and we shall be unworthy followers of Him whose name is Love.

Birds Over Hoppers

Thousands of Gulls Land And Clear The Fields

In certain parts of southern Alberta where grasshoppers were so numerous this summer vast flocks of birds were literally covering the fields, moulting up the hoppers, and when they had concluded their attack about 75 per cent of the insects had been devoured.

Reeve A. Schug of Rosemead said that on a field of 60 acres a flock of gulls glided in from the south and practically covered the ground. He estimated about 50,000 on the entire field, a score of grasshoppers per gull. The birds were not New comers, but were travelling abroad from the hills trying to evade them as the gulls walked onward, but by the time the gulls had cleared the New comers some three-quarters of the hoppers were no more.

And he couldn't give a proper address without a live exhibit. So into the classroom walked Exhibit's smiling white pony, with a saddle 'n' everything. He made a good speech, too.

Care Of Children

Lectures To Be Given In New York To Educate Mothers

An institute to debunk the ancient myth that all mothers are good mothers, and to educate them with plans to promote its idea by lectures and clinics. The institute's program was outlined by Bernard Deitch, president of the New York board of aldermen.

"Every walk in life, to be truly successful, needs long and weary suffering," he said. "Why expect motherhood? Let us debunk the ancient myth once and for all. There are good mothers, bad mothers, intelligent mothers, and ignorant mothers."

By instructing women in proper care of children, the institute hopes to attempt improving the motherhood "ability" of its pupils.

JAMES JOHNSTON

"The Quality Store"

Chancellor

CHANCELLOR, Nov. 10.—Miss Alice Hamilton of Calgary spent nearly two weeks visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Strom.

On Thursday Mr. Strom took his daughter, Miss Angeline Strom, and Miss Hamilton to Calgary. From there she left by bus for Manhattan, Kansas, where she will stay with her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Muir motored to Calgary on Thursday, returning to Chancellor on Saturday night. They report the roads are in a bad condition, especially from the highway to town's junction.

Mrs. E. H. Young has been very ill at the Holy Cross hospital and underwent an operation last Tuesday. She will not be able to return home for another two weeks.

The monthly meeting of the W.I. group was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. F. Fenske. Despite the bad roads there were 12 members present.

It was decided to have a home cooking sale on November 15 to be held in G. C. Phillips store. Mrs. P. Rogers gave a very pleasing solo. At the close of the meeting, the hostess served a dainty luncheon.

On Saturday night friends met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Muir to wish her a hearty farewell before she leaves for Twin Falls, Idaho, where she will visit her sister. The evening was most enjoyed playing bridge. After midnight luncheon was served to all. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Muir, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Muir, Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Wheatley, Mr. and Mrs. Nels Hansen, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fenske and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hobbs.

On Thursday Mr. Olga Phillips attempted to go to Calgary for a truck and groceries, but had to turn back on account of the bad condition of the roads. On Friday he was, however, able to make the trip successfully.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Christensen and five children are leaving Tuesday on a four months' tour of the States, where they will visit many relatives and friends. They are going by car and will first visit in St. Paul, Minn.

Miss Marie Gronberg of Bassano is at present visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Muir.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Fenske entertained at a bridge party on Sunday night, an event which was greatly enjoyed by all present. The ladies' first prize was won by Miss Marjorie Grant, and the gent's first prize was won by Mr. G. C. Phillips. The consolation prize went to Mrs. H. Chamney. As very delicious luncheon was served by the hostess at midnight. The guests were: Miss Marie Gronberg of Bassano, P. B. Barker, Miss Josephine Francis, Logan Drydale, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Muir, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Muir, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hobbs and Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Phillips, Miss Marjorie Grant and Mrs. H. Chamney.

The Danish Ladies' Aid held their annual bazaar at the Sunny Range school on Friday. In spite of the cold weather a fair sized crowd was present, and the proceeds from their sales and tombola was amazingly successful. The beautiful comforter which was raffled off went to the lucky winner, Mrs. Harold Thew of Husar.
